HAVANA (AP) — Stokely Carmichael told the Havana revolutionary conference Wednesday the American Black Power movement stands ready to help Latin Red revolution from "Tierra del Fuego to Alaska." "We seek with you to change the power bases of the world," turns man into a "cold, killing machine."

An honorary OLAS delegate by acclamation, Carmichael repeated many of the charges against U.S. policy he had made in the United States. He made no reference to Tuesday's news conference when he was reported to have made a veiled threat against President Johnson and other U.S. leaders.

"Hell, no; we will not go," he said.

"We are fighting for the redistribution of wealth and prosperity in the United States," he said.

Two times during his speech the lights dimmed for seconds and Carmichael asked his audience: "Are you sure the CIA is not here?"

A 30-minute power blackout hit Cuba's capital city soon after he spoke. Before the lights went out, however, Carmichael was given a standing ovation from the estimated 700 delegates, observers and special guests at the pro-Castro meeting.

Carmichael, who has become increasingly stronger in his attacks on the United States since coming to Cuba a week ago, said young Negroes are carrying the racial revolution in America today.

YOUNG HATE

"It is the young blood that contains the hatred mentioned by Che," Carmichael said, referring to a message April 17 credited to the missing Cuban guerrilla, Ernesto "Che" Guevara.

He then read the part of the message calling for "relentless hatred of the enemy" which
